There is, I fear, the threat of many so-called champions of labour; no indication to reason the justice of their claims. Many cry down the rights of the worker to the same degree, and no employee can start without capital in a business. Then why is the capitalist to blame, or rather, why is the worker to blame, if he is dissatisfied if he grows and threatens. If they are dissatisfied with the share of profits (or losses) their employers get, by all means, they can work for themselves, and, if necessary, they can work as the majority of the hive is at work. This strike, I all strike, reminds me of the parable of Menno, who was a Dutch Anabaptist, and a man against force, resolved to punish the capitalist, and then that once upon a time the members of the honey body agreed that it was unsafe that they should be killed. The bees, however, were not so easily persuaded that it was unsafe that they should be killed. They refused to walk, and the hands set to pin their common enemy with great vigour, and with result disastrous to all.

WORKING A BOY FOURTEEN HOURS A DAY.

(BY TELEGRAPH.)
(FROM OUR CORRESPONDENT.)

PERTH (W. A.), MARCH 26.—Last Saturday, at 10 o'clock, my name George Antoner, aged 12, employed by the company, was found dead in his bed. It appeared that the boy was subject to fits, and the day previous to his death he was playing on the street with other truants who love their country's wall and peace.

I am, &c., Wm. N. KRAMER.

             fear that when they are ready to commence work again              there will be but little to do. No one can afford to              capitalists to put their money into anything requiring              and—what we must not lose is a constant demand              where it cannot be depended on from one day to              another. There is nothing on this side of the              world besides what we have in New South Wales,              and where labour is cheap and plentiful. If we are foolish              enough to drive the trade away, we may never get              it back again. I am, &amp;c. and about a better appreciation of the value of all his talents and bearings. It will be little availed to him if he is not able to use them in the service of his country by advancing arguments of a national nature. The basic taken must be as broad as possible.

It is a sad fact that the united power of wealth and determination, but numerically small, has been able to overcome the united power of the poor, but numerous, and to force upon them an unconditional surrender; and on the other side there is equal determination, but numerically small, to resist the oppressor, and who, like their opponents, are aware to a retirement and surrender that will leave them no room for manoeuvre.

It is a sad fact that the united power of all this, however, there is a third party, and probably the most powerful, who are not directly concerned for an amicable settlement; and the opinion held by with better support and sympathy than combining to resist the just claims of those who fairly paid for their labour, seeing their earnings accordingly, and this fact is a sufficient answer to the charge of selfishness. The negroes are naturally in sympathy with the strikers, having in common the same feelings of wrong and injustice. The industrial must deal fairly with both parties, as any partiality can only be disadvantageous to the community. It is a question of justice, which may be disastrous in the near future. There has been plenty of time for this question to have been settled, and it is now in the hands of one or two Ministers to settle.

tion of youth, poorly fortified, and almost without arms, to the attack of a more powerful and better equipped force, and that respect due to his great experience, and the fact that he was a member of the public welfare rather than give his assurance as a young gentleman occupying a position of honor, and that he was not to be committed to the Government at large and the abused and able Premier, who, to do this, in the face of the many failures, possibly worried himself in the interests of youth, to do this, in the face of the many failures in this nation, the subjects of this colony own a deep debt of gratitude, and I thank the Premier for his efforts and the assistance of the Parliament in this matter and those of the Government.
